rar Directed by Perarasu, Aalavandhan (2001) Hindi movie starring Arvind Swamy, Jayasudha, Lakshmi. Arvind Swamy and Lakshmi played lead roles in this film, which was one of the major hits of the year 2001. Aalavandhan tells the story of a youth in a village. However, his life takes a turn when he gets involved in the activities of his friend, Nandagiri (Arvind Swamy). The love affair between Nandagiri and his college friend's wife (Jayasudha) gets into trouble when the youth is wrongly accused of theft. In the end, the couple get united. The film was a blockbuster hit in Tamil Nadu, and was also the first box-office success for both the leading actors. Aalavandhan is also the first Hindi film in which Jayasudha played a female lead. In 2012, the Tamil film Aalavandhan (2001) was remade into Malayalam as Megham and into Kannada as Venkatadri. This version was released in April 2012. Storyline Aalavandhan The story is based on the small village in Thiruvananthapuram which faces problems that arise due to the adjoining big city. It is an important story of the good and bad with the life of its rural population. The story revolves around two generations of two families that have lived in this town. The story begins with the daughter of the landlord asking Nandagiri's parents for his hand in marriage. Nandagiri's parents are enthusiastic about it and go to the landlord's place to talk about the proposal. But due to the unjustified behavior of the landlord's son, Nandagiri's parents are denied permission to give their consent. It angers Nandagiri, and he says his parents don't want to marry him to his friend's daughter. Nandagiri is a petty thief. He loses everything when the landlord's son takes all the things away. His friend is also upset about the loss. With all the other work, he wants to go to the city and get his love. He can't go as he is afraid of the landlord's son. The landlord's son comes to know about the theft and goes to the place where Nandagiri was working. There is a person on the way, but Nandagiri takes 82157476af
